What's the reason Hannibal G. Hamlin wouldn't make a good Governor?

A new daily paper is to be started it Washington, one side of which shall be Democratic and the other side Republican. Why not have a side for every shade of politics-a regular kaleidoscope?

The Columbus Dispatch, of Monday evening, says:

T. W. Brotherton, Esq., of Wapakoneta, the Gibraltar of the Democracy in the North-west, is urged for Lieutenant Governor by the Republican Executive Committee of Auglaize county, on the ground that on local tickets he leads his ticket by several hundred votes. That is a good recommendation.

The Brother who expects to win needs to weigh a ton

There is a great deal of speculation as to the attitude the Republican Senate will assume toward President Cleveland's appointments. It is safe to say that the enate may consider that forced vacancies in office on account of offensive partisanism ought not to be filled by the offensively partisan, whether they be Republicans r Democrats. See?

Cottonwood and poplar trees are said to e the best preventive of malaria to be had. They are absorbents, both root and leaves and their anti-malarial virtue is recognized with such faith that authorities at Washington have ordered a large supply of them for the Potomac flats. The question arises whether Hoadly will order a sprig of cottonwood for a buttonhole bouquet after the Springfield convention.

The veterans at Washington who have it "in" for the rampant Democracy of that city to fire nu aerous salutes in honor of Senator Logan bave had to go all the way to Philadelphia for a cannon. The surprising lack of military ordnance at the Capital brings to mind the fact that it is probably owing to this that certain gentlemen are more numerous in Washington than during "the late unpleasantness."

John C. Brown, of Steubenville, will be a candidate for State Treasurer before the Republican State Convention. It should be remembered that Mr. Brown has served four terms as County Treasurer of Jefferson, and as a candidate for State Treasurer, two years ago, he received the largest vote, with but one exception, of any canlidate on the ticket. He was also an old soldier in the late war and lost a leg in the service, and is highly recommended as eminently fitted for the position. The bloody work of the Apaches in the Southwest continues. Every day brings heartrending accounts of the terrible deeds of rapine and murder committed by these painted red-skins, but never a statement that one of them has suffered for his crimes. The mutilated remains of slaughtered men and outraged women are counted by dozens in the track of the relentless butchers, and scores of orphaned children cry vainly for parents murdered, but the murderous savages go their way unharmed. There are still a few of our prominent citizens who have not yet been mentioned as gubernatorial possibilities, were about to say that Mr. Benjamin H. Warder was one of them but he is not, for he has been suggested as a good man to be nominated by communication to the GLOBE-REPUBLIC and in the newspapers. We know of no man who has better qualifications, in all respects, than Mr. Warder. He has a conception of affairs that is both intelligent and comprehensive and his administrative abilities are really remarkable. If Mr. Warder were to give his attention to politics he would bring to the counsels of the Republicans a clear, level, compact head, a warm heart and a well educated and well formed conscience, and would do much to elevate and refine the tone of public affairs. He is opposed to barrel politics, is in favor of the civil service reform and of the selection of the very best and strongest men to office. But he is "not a candidate" for anything and any mention of his name in connection with a proposed nomination would be wholly unauthorized, as this mention certainly is! But public journals have a right to "mention" an honest man in a proper way, We repeat what we have already said -namely-that we have several citizens who would make good candidates and grace the position of Governor, if they were nominated and elected. But no one of them is a candidate. Mr. Mast has been mentioned in this way; and we might name Mr. Robert Johnson, and Mr. Ross

DIAMOND SLEEVE-BUTTON. With slow steps and drooping head Rosa Arlingford walked across the lawn and through the grove, until she had come to the silent, mysterious river which formed the boundary of her father's land. Gravely and sadly she watched its placed flow, while her face and attitude expressed a weariness and depression which but ill accorded with depression which but ill accorded with the perfect beauty of the night. A young moon was drooping its silver bars across the gently rippling water. The rich foliage of some tall trees, here and there, cast dark shadows. which, contrasting with the moon's silver rays, heightened the beauty of the scene. But Rosa Arlingford seemthe scene. But Rosa Aringford seemed not to see any of the gems of this beautiful landscape. Her hands were clasped (not closely and firmly as though some passionate sorrow required to be held in check,) as if the violence of her grief had been expended. She was submitting to her fate with the silence of despair. As if to cheer and brighten the sad face, a beam from the bright moon fell across her and lit up the brown hair and shone upon her delicate and beautiful features, making them lovely beyond expression. But the girl seemed to shrink from the kindly beams, for she drew closer toward the shadows of the trees, and for a little while hid her face with her hands. Her face was deadly pale, and she said, in low tones: "Just three years last night we parted—he to go to the far West, I to remain here. We promised to be true to each other; I have kept my promise—but, oh! where is he? He wrote that he would be home last night but he has not come.
Ralph! Ralph! come to me or I will die. They will force me to marry the man I hate. Oh, Father in heaven, look down and pity thy child!" and

Her face was now ghast-ly white with terror, and she trembled so much she could hardly stand; but the call came again, and this time a dark figure appeared. As it came near-er she recognized her father.

Why, Rosa, you look like the last

The very sound of that name sent a chill over poor Rosa. It is the name of the rich old bachelor her father wanted her to marry.
Rising from her lowly posture, she ran and fell on her knees, exclaiming:

"Oh, father, send him away! Why should be always come to make me miserable? Oh, father, I never want to see him again. He can never win my love, for Raiph already possesses

"It is idle for you to resist," said her father, sternly, at last. "I have other views in regard to your future, Ross. I know what is best for you.' "But, ready, father you can offer no valid objection to Ralph.

"He hasn't a hundred shillings to his name!" "But he will have. He is active talented, and industrious, and he may be as lucky as you have been, father."

"Very well, I know; but I don't fancy that arrangement of yours at all. Cease to correspond with Ralph Belmont at once. Here is Col. Rodman, who is worth his thousands."

I don't believe he comes from one of the first families of Maryland, as he pretends. He is an impostor. Besides, I have promised to marry Ralph when you consent to our union."

"Indeed!" exclaimed the old man, not a little gratified at his daughter's good intention. "Indeed! then you will not marry in a hurry, miss, I prom ise you. You will not have my consent to any such arrangement with Ralph

"No you won't."
"Do you think so, father?"
"Indeed I do. You are now of marriageable age....'' nou are now of mar-"And you wish to get me off your hands?"'

"If you don't I will cut you off without a shilling."

"I will not wed without your approv al, father."
"Very well; that is as I would have

"But more seriously attached to my expected dowry, father," suggested

Just then there was a rustling among Just then there was a rustling among the leaves and a servant appeared upon the scene. "Come quick, Mr. Arlingford; Col. Rodman is gone, and Mrs. Arlingford has lost her diamond sleeve-button. She says the believes Col. Rodman has stolen it. She had it in her cuff when she was in the parlor, and just stepped into the hall, when she missed it, and when she went back Col Rodman was gone—and she can't Col Rodman was gone—and she can't "Go quick, father; it is the beautiful button Uncle Harry sent mother from Cuba."

Just as ber father and the servant disappeared she heard a rustle among the leaves and the words: "Rosa, Rosa," when a manly form stepped name Mr. Robert Johnson, and Mr. Ross. "Yes, my little love," and he drew her head against his breast: told her how his old aunt had died and left him millionaire, and that he had been detained to settle some of her business matters; and how he was sitting on a log resting, and heard the conversation between her and her father. "And now, darling, I know you are true to me, but your father will not consent to our union," he remarked. She look-ed up in his clear blue eyes, and with a smile took his arm and said: "Let's go and see."

When they reached the house there was no person there but her mother and her maid.

Rosa whispered: "Ralph, you know mother always liked you."

"Yes, dear!" And you, reader would think so, too, had you seen them a few minutes later as they all sat in the parlor. The old lady repeated to them what the servant had told R ssa and her fether and added that the police. ber father, and added that the police were already in pursuit of Col. Rod-

It needs only to be added that when Mr. Arlingford returned matters were explained. The would-be rich Col. Rodman was found to be a highway robber, and in a few weeks was tried, convicted, and sent to prison for life. Within one year Rosa became Mrs. Ralph Belmont, with old Mr. Arling-ford's cordial consent.

Father, Mother, and Three Sisters Dead.

Mr. David Claypool, formerly Sergeantat-Arms of the New Jersey Senate, and now
Notary Public at Cedarville, Cumberland Co., N. J., makes the following startling statement: "My father, mother, and three sisters all died with consumption, and my lungs were so weak I raised blood. "Nobody thought I could live. My work (shipsmithing) was very straining on me with my weak constitution, and I was rapidly going to the grave. While in this condition I commenced using Mishler's Herb Bitters, and it saved my life. Because it was so difficult to get it in this little place, and I had improved so much, I stopped taking it for a time, and the result is that I have commenced going rapidly down hill again.
Somehow, Mishler's Herb Bitters gives appetite and strengthens and builds me up as nothing else does, and I must have a dozen bottles at once. "Jee this communication as you please, and "any one wants to be convinced of its truth, "I them write me and I will make affidavit to it, for I owe my life to Mishler's Herb Bitters."

The secret of the almost invariable relief and cure of consumption, dysentery, diarrhoza, dyspepsia, indigestion, kidney and liver complaints, when Mishler's Herb Bitters is used, is that it contains simple,
harmless, and yet powerful ingredients,
that act on the blood, kidneys, and liver, and through them strengthens and invigorates the whole system. Purely vegetate you to take care of."
"Father," replied the son, seriously, "I—I have a confession to make. This afternoon a friend took me into a gambling house, and, just for fun, I made a few bets on the deuce. I played, her open, but she dropped wrong on me right along. But I trebled my bets every time, pa, and finally thought I would sink the whole pile or out to his winner and so I staked quit a big winner, and so I staked every dollar I had. Pa, the deuce lost

"Not another word! I see it all. You have lost your money and disgraced your family. I don't know what your gambling gibberish means—I never disgraced myself by going into such places. William, you will bring your that act on the blood, kidneys, and liver, and through them strengthens and invigorates the whole system. Purely vegetable in its composition; prepared by a regular physician; a standard medicinal preparation; endorsed by physicians and druggists. These are four strong points in favor of Mishler's Herb Bitters. Mishler's Herb Bitters is sold by all druggists. Price $1.00 per large bottle. 6 bottles for $5.00.

"But, pa, that last bet was cop-pered." "Coppered, boy, and fell beside the ox? Is that so? Bless you, my son; bless you. Did you win a stack of blues? Reds, you say? Better still. Good for you, William; you're a chip of the old block. Run out and buy

Poetry or Nothing.

"See here," said a citizen of St. Louis to the proprietor of a bookstore, "you'll have to take the book back. I asked you to give me a volume of poetry to put on the parlor table, but every durned word in this book is straight prose."

"Why, man alive, that was written by Shakspeare."

"Idon't care who writ it it's process."

I am sixty-seven years old, and have fived in this (Hail) county all my life. Up to twenty-eight years ago I was regarded as the strongest man in the neighborhoof—the most robust in health. In November, 1856, I had a long and serious spell of typhoid fever. It left me enaciated and a cripple in my right leg. At times that limb was swollen an enormous size, being twice as large as its natural condition, and inflamed and angry in appearance. From my knee down small sows came, and at the ankle a large nier came, which discharged poisonous matter. My whole system became inflected. The doctors would patch me up for awhile, but the ulser would never heal. The mercury and potash with which they dosed me brought on rheumatism and dyspepsis. I was an object of pity to all my friends. Some thought that the only hope to save life was amputation. I continued to grow worse, and for three years I have not worn a shoe. Hope had almost left me. Swift's Specific was suggested, and I commenced its use at once. From the very first I began to feel better. I had taken thirty-six bottle, and the shadows which had darkened my life for twenty-eight years have all been dissipated. The effect of the medicine has been wonderful indeed. Today I am able to attend to all my farming interests, and walk from one to five mies per day. I am satisfied that the disease is entirely broken up, and henceforth I am to be free from those terrible apprehensions and suffering which formerly made my life interests. Swift's Specific has done more for me in one year than all the drug store medicine prescribed by physicians did in twenty-eight years, and I most cheerfully bear this testimony of its merits.

My arm was swollen to twice its usual size, and as nothing helped me I was despairing of ever being cured. But hearing of the S. S. S. Dear Sirs—One of our customers has been troubled with Kidney Complaint, has tried nearly everything, and since taking 3 flottles: f Calculi Resolvent he claims to be fully relieved and cured. He does not want his name made public, but we can say he has used nearly everything for his complaint, but this time he struck the right medicine. Respectfully,

RAUSCHKOLB BROGE, Druggists.

Gentlemen—For years I have a times been trou led from torpid liver, and also, more or less, from Kidney affection. Some time ago, when in the conviltion above mentioned, I procured a bottle of your Calculi Resolvent. At the time my urine was very red, and the sediment accumulated during the sight had somewhat the appearance of briefs dust. Before I had completed the bottle my liver seemed to set "se a new one, and the urine cleared up, the offensive smell left it, and now no deposit is found when it stands a few hour. I give this statement unasked, and, it worth anything in calling the sitention of those similarity afficied, you may use it as you like. Youre truly,
